Grand Turk is the Capital of the Turks & Caicos Islands and it is here that most government offices and agencies are headquartered. On Grand Turk's Guanahani Beach, Christopher Columbus first made landfall on his initial voyage to the New World in 1492. Almost 500 years later, U.S. astronaut John Glenn discovered Grand Turk himself, as he splashed down in the sea after he became the first American to orbit the earth.

Grand Turk is one of the main historical points of the Turks & Caicos Islands. Cockburn Town is the administrative capital and the historic and cultural center of the Islands. Duke and Front Streets are lined with timeless 18th and 19th century landmarks that reflect the Bermudian-style architecture of the Salt Raking Era. Two of these buildings are now popular inns, another is the Governor's residence and others include government offices, the public library, churches, private residences and fraternities.

One of Grand Turk's main attractions is the unique wall diving experience. Grand Turk is also home to the world's third largest barrier reef and is consistently ranked among the world's top scuba-diving destinations. The Columbus Landfall National Park provides access to rare black coral, giant manta rays, sharks and dolphins. Grand Turk also features phenomenal bird watching at each of its abandoned salt ponds. During whale-watching season from late December through April, visitors can watch migrating humpback whales travel across the deep-water Columbus Passage on their way to the Silver Banks. There is also a state-of-the-art luxury cruise ship center on Grand Turk's southwestern shore.

Grand Turk is the original home of the country's National Museum. Located in historic Guinep House, here you will find a central exhibit that tells the story of the Molasses Reef Wreck, the oldest European shipwreck discovered in the Western hemisphere (dated around 1505). The Museum also has a natural history gallery and displays that interpret many historic events, as well as the country's rich cultural and natural history. Stamp collectors never miss a stop at the Philatelic Bureau, as the Islands are known for their colorful and unusual issues.

Grand Turk's other historic sites include the 1852 Lighthouse (built of cast iron pieces imported from England), St. Thomas' Anglican Church (built in 1823 and considered the oldest on the island), the former HM prison, Oddfellows Lodge, Gun Hill and South Creek. A most popular excursion just off Grand Turk is Gibb's Cay, where visitors can enjoy an uninhabited island, a picnic on the beach and a chance to feed the beautiful stingrays who swim right up to snorkelers.
